

The Art of Cooking

Having been established since 1998, The Mango House restaurant in Magor boasts a warm and welcoming ambience, unlike any other restaurant in the area. To celebrate its success and 10th anniversary they have opened an elegant restaurant in the heart of Cardiff's Westgate Street, close to the Millenium Stadium. To celebrate the launch of the Cardiff restaurant, the Mango House will be participating in Cardiff's annual Indian Food Festival on Friday 7th March. The Mango House is the only restaurant in the city centre taking part in the event and will be offering curry lovers a 20% discount.

Both restaurants offer completely unique dining experiences, not to mention an excellent choice of food, an eclectic selection of beverages and a personal, sincere service that's second to none. Not only do they have something to suit every taste and occasion, but both restaurants provide the perfect setting to complete any occasion.

With its characteristic stone walls and ambient lighting, the original Mango House situated just off Magor Square, offers the diner a more rustic and homely atmosphere, Whereas Westgate Street's most recent addition; the Mango House in Cardiff, provides a very relaxed and inviting atmosphere, that has undoubtedly raised the bar for many modern restaurants. Its heavenly cuisine and its elegant and chic décor, undoubtedly makes the Mango House one of the finest Indian restaurants in Cardiff. So whether you're looking for a romantic meal for two, an elaborate dinner for family and friends, or even if you just fancy picking up a simple takeaway, make it The Mango House in Magor or Cardiff.

"The perfect mix of modern and traditional"

"Forever scoring a winning goal with great food and a top manager"
